1 INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiff is a former owner of a 2012 Chevrolet Silverado truck who “received his
 3 Silverado used as part of a separation agreement with a previous employer” and now claims,
 4 despite driving his vehicle for many years and tens of thousands of miles, that his vehicle
 5 consumed excess oil before he sold it. Plaintiff brings warranty, fraud, and consumer
 6 protection claims against GM based on this alleged oil consumption defect, and seeks to 7 represent a nationwide class of owners and lessees of seven different vehicle models.
 8 Plaintiff’s claims fail on multiple grounds.

9 First, plaintiff’s express warranty claim (Count 3) cannot proceed because he alleges
 10 a design defect not covered under GM’s limited warranty, and he does not allege facts
 11 showing that his vehicle is within the warranty period or that GM denied him repairs.

12 Second, the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act claim (Count 1) cannot proceed because 13 there is no viable state law warranty claim. Plaintiff also cannot meet the MMWA 14 requirements for a class action claim.

15 Third, plaintiff’s fraudulent omission claim (Count 4) fails because it is preempted by 16 the Washington Products Liability Act, and does not meet Rule 9(b)’s particularity 17 requirements. Plaintiff does not allege facts establishing that GM had knowledge of the 18 alleged defect at the time he received his vehicle or that GM owed him a duty to disclose, 19 precluding any fraud-based claim. Plaintiff also does not establish injury, reliance, or 20 causation.

21 Fourth, plaintiff’s consumer protection claim (Count 2) likewise does not satisfy the 22 pleading requirements of Rule 9(b). Plaintiff’s Washington Consumer Protection Act claim 23 cannot proceed for the additional reasons that he cannot establish the requisite elements of 24 injury or causation, or that GM had knowledge of the alleged defect at the time of sale.
 25 Plaintiff also lacks standing to seek injunctive relief because he does not allege a likelihood 26 of continuing or future harm.

1 Fifth, plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim (Count 5) is precluded by GM's express
 2 written warranty and adequate remedies at law. This claim also fails because plaintiff never 3 purchased or leased his vehicle and therefore did not confer a benefit on GM.

4 Finally, the nationwide MMWA class allegations should be stricken because plaintiff
 5 lacks standing to assert a MMWA claim under the laws of states in which he does not reside
 6 and suffered no injury. A nationwide MMWA claim would also be governed by the laws of 7 all fifty states, and substantive variations in state laws defeat the commonality,
 8 predominance, and superiority requirements of Rule 23.

9 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

10 Plaintiff Kelly Harris is a Washington resident who owned a used, model year 2012
 11 Chevrolet Silverado, which he received in 2012 from his former employer as part of a 12 separation agreement. Compl. ¶¶ 24-25. Plaintiff alleges that his vehicle was equipped with a 13 Generation IV 5.3 liter V8 Vortec 5300 LC9 engine ("Gen IV LC9 engine"). Id. ¶ 25.
 14 Plaintiff alleges that he first became aware that his vehicle was consuming excess oil in late
 15 2015. Id. at ¶ 26. Although plaintiff alleges that he took his vehicle into a Chevrolet 16 dealership on unspecified occasions for spark plug issues, and that he was once informed the 17 vehicle was low on oil and had fouled spark plugs, he does not allege that this occurred
 18 during the warranty period or that GM failed to repair the vehicle. Id. at ¶ 29.

19 Plaintiff alleges generically that GM was aware of the alleged oil consumption defect, 20 but pleads no facts in support. He does not identify any GM statements specifically related to 21 the alleged oil consumption defect. Id. ¶¶ 108-29. Rather he cites GM advertisements and 22 public statements that generally reference the performance, power, and fuel economy of 23 GM's vehicles. Id. Plaintiff also does not allege that he saw or relied on any of these specific 24 materials in making a purchase, nor could he, as he never actually purchased his vehicle. Id.
 25 ¶ 25.

26 Plaintiff alleges five causes of action: (i) violation of the MMWA, (ii) violation of the

1 Washington Consumer Protection Act, (iii) breach of express warranty, (iv) fraudulent
 2 omission, and (v) unjust enrichment. Id. ¶¶ 153-210. Plaintiff seeks to represent classes of 3 nationwide and Washington owners and lessees of certain model year 2010-2014 Chevrolet
 4 and GMC vehicles equipped with Gen IV LC9 engines (“Class Vehicles”).¹ Even though he 5 did not purchase or otherwise pay for his 2012 Silverado (having received it from his former 6 employer), plaintiff alleges that he suffered “ascertainable loss” because he “would not have 7 purchased” his vehicle or “would have paid less” for it had the alleged oil consumption
 8 defect been disclosed. Id. ¶ 180. Plaintiff seeks injunctive relief, as well as costs, restitution, 9 pre and post-judgment interest, and damages, including punitive damages. Id. at Request for 10 Relief, p. 67.

LEGAL STANDARD

12 To avoid dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6), a plaintiff must provide grounds for relief
 13 which “requires more than labels and conclusions.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S.
 14 544, 555 (2007). The “complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 15 ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678
 16 (2009) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570). Although well-pleaded factual allegations are 17 assumed to be true, a court need not “accept as true a legal conclusion couched as a factual 18 allegation.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555.

19 Claims sounding in fraud, including fraudulent omission and statutory consumer
 20 protection claims, must also meet Rule 9(b)’s heightened pleading standard. See Baugh v.
 21 Johnson & Johnson, No. C15-5283 BHS, 2015 WL 4759151, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 12, 22 2015) (fraudulent concealment); Fid. Mortg. Corp. v. Seattle Times Co., 213 F.R.D. 573, 575
 23 (W.D. Wash. 2003) (Washington Consumer Protection Act). Plaintiffs must plead those

24
 25 ¹ The Class Vehicles include: 2010-14 Chevrolet Avalanche, 2010-13 Chevrolet Silverado,
 26 2010-14 Chevrolet Suburban, 2010-14 Chevrolet Tahoe, 2010-13 GMC Sierra, 2010-14
 GMC Yukon, and 2010-14 GMC Yukon XL. Id. ¶ 2.

1 claims with particularity and identify the who, what, when, where, and how of the alleged 2 fraudulent conduct. Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b).

3 When the defendant challenges class certification based solely on the allegations in 4 the complaint, the standard is the same as that applied in deciding a motion to dismiss under 5 Rule 12(b)(6). Cashatt v. Ford Motor Co., No. 3:19-CV-05886-RBL, 2020 WL 1987077, at 6 *4 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 27, 2020).

7 ARGUMENT

8 I. PLAINTIFF DOES NOT STATE AN EXPRESS WARRANTY CLAIM.

9 A. GM's Limited Warranty Does Not Cover The Alleged Defect.

10 Plaintiff's alleged design defect is not covered by GM's limited warranty, which only 11 covers defects in material or workmanship. Compl. ¶ 184; see also Sloan v. Gen. Motors 12 LLC, No. 16-cv-07244-EMC, 2017 WL 3283998, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 1, 2017) ("[T]he 13 overwhelming weight of state law authority holds that design defects are not covered under 14 [GM's Limited Warranty]").

15 There are two distinct categories of product defects, manufacturing defects (materials 16 and workmanship) and design defects:

17 A manufacturing defect exists when an item is produced in a substandard
 18 condition, and such a defect is often demonstrated by showing the product
 19 performed differently from other ostensibly identical units of the same 20 product line. A design defect, in contrast, exists when the product is built in accordance with its intended specifications, but the design itself is inherently defective.

21 Davidson v. Apple, No. 16-CV-04942-LHK, 2017 WL 976048, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 14, 22 2017) (internal quotations and citations omitted).

23 Plaintiff alleges "the 'Oil Consumption Defect' . . . is an inherent defect in each of 24 the Class Vehicles." Id. at ¶ 7. Where, as here, a defect is alleged in all vehicles, the claim is 25 for a design defect. See Gertz v. Toyota Motor Corp., No. CV 10-1089 PSG (VBKx), 2011

WL 3681647, at *10 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2011). Thus, an express warranty claim “fails as a matter of law if it alleges a design defect, but is brought under ‘an express written warranty covering materials and workmanship.’” Schechner v. Whirlpool Corp., 237 F. Supp. 3d 601, 613 (E.D. Mich. 2017). Numerous courts have enforced the plain language of GM’s warranty at the motion to dismiss stage, and specifically held that it covers only defects in “materials and workmanship” (manufacturing defects) and not design defects.²

Because plaintiff alleges a design defect not covered by the warranty, he fails to state a claim for breach of express warranty. Sloan, 2017 WL 3283998, at *8 (dismissing express warranty claim based on the same alleged defect because the allegations did not fall within the terms of GM’s new vehicle limited warranty).

B. Plaintiff Does Not Allege That A Defect Manifested In His Vehicle During The Warranty Period.

Plaintiff’s express warranty claim also cannot proceed because he has not alleged that he experienced the alleged defect and sought repairs from GM during the warranty term. See Beaty v. Ford Motor Co., No. C17-2501RBL, 2018 WL 3320854, at * 4 (W.D. Wash. Jan. 16, 2018). Warranties limited by time or mileage do not cover repairs made after the applicable time has elapsed even if the alleged problem existed prior to the expiration of the express warranty. Id. (dismissing express warranty claim based on alleged latent defect where plaintiff did not make a claim until after the warranty period).

² See, e.g. Hindsman v. Gen. Motors LLC, No. 17-cv-05337-JSC, 2018 WL 2463113, at *6 (N.D. Cal. June 1, 2018) (“As the New Vehicle Limited Warranties cover defects in materials or workmanship they do not cover design defects.”); In re Motors Liquidation Co., No. 09-50026 (REG), 2013 WL 620281, at *6 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Feb. 19, 2013) (“By its plain terms, the [GM] Warranty does not require New GM to repair defects caused by bad design.”); Acedo v. DMAX, Ltd. & Gen. Motors LLC, No. CV 15-02443 MMM (ASx), 2015 WL 12696176, at *23 (C.D. Cal. 1 II. THERE IS NO VIABLE MMWA CLAIM.

2 The Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act claim (Count 1) fails because plaintiff does not
 3 plead viable state law warranty claims. Coe v. Philips Oral Healthcare Inc., No. C13-518-
 4 MJP, 2014 WL 722501, at *9 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 24, 2014) (“disposition of the state law
 5 warranty claims determines the disposition of the Magnuson-Moss Act claims”). Plaintiff
 6 bases his MMWA claim on the same theory as his express warranty claim (compare Compl.
 7 ¶¶ 168-80 with ¶¶ 181-92), and it fails for the same reasons. Coe, 2014 WL 722501, at *9
 8 (dismissing MMWA claims because plaintiffs’ state law warranty claims were not viable).

9 In addition, a single plaintiff cannot maintain a class action claim under the MMWA
 10 because the statute requires at least 100 named plaintiffs. See 15 U.S.C. § 2310(d)(3)(C); see 11 also Sloan v. Gen. Motors LLC, No. 16-CV-07244-EMC, 2019 WL 6612221, at *8 (N.D.

15 III. PLAINTIFF’S FRAUDULENT OMISSION CLAIM FAILS ON 16 MULTIPLE GROUNDS.

17 A. Plaintiff’s Fraudulent Omission Claim Is Preempted by The 18 Washington Products Liability Act.

19 The Washington Product Liability Act (“WPLA”) creates a “single cause of action
 20 for product-related harms that supplants previously existing common law remedies.” *Wash.
 21 Water Power Co. v. Graybar Elec. Co.*, 112 Wash. 2d 847, 860 (1989); *see also Macias v.
 22 Saberhagen Holdings, Inc.*, 175 Wash. 2d 402, 409 (2012). The “WPLA is the exclusive 23 remedy for product liability claims.” Id. The scope of claims subsumed by the WPLA
 24 “could not have been stated more broadly.” Graybar, 112 Wash. 2d at 854. The WPLA specifically includes claims related to “concealment.” Wash. Rev. Code Ann. § 7.72.010(4).

25 Plaintiff’s fraudulent omission claim is based on GM’s concealment of an alleged oil
 26 consumption defect. Compl. ¶¶ 193-202. Thus, under Washington law, the exclusive remedy for such a claim is the WPLA. See Cashatt, 2020 WL 1987077, at *3 (dismissing fraudulent omission claim as preempted by WPLA where plaintiff alleged “that Ford knew about the defect with its vehicles but omitted/concealed that information from Plaintiffs and others, leading them to suffer damages”). Plaintiff’s characterization of his omission claim as fraud, does not exempt it from the WPLA, as plaintiff never actually purchased or leased his 2012 Silverado, and therefore, his alleged damages “are inherently connected” to the vehicle itself because they arise from operation not purchase. Id. (where plaintiffs did not actually enter into a transaction with Ford but were issued their vehicles from their employer, plaintiffs’ damages “could not have arisen purely out of Ford’s alleged fraud Plaintiffs’ injuries are inherently connected to Ford’s products themselves because they arose from merely operating the vehicles, not buying them. . . . The fraudulent omission claim is preempted by the WPLA and dismissed”).

B. The Complaint Does Not Meet The Particularity Requirements Of Rule 9(b).

Further, the conclusory allegations in the complaint do not meet the heightened pleading standard of Rule 9(b). Rule 9(b) requires plaintiffs to state with particularity “the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). The complaint must contain “the who, what, when, where, and how” of any alleged misrepresentation or omission. Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 1124 (9th Cir. 2009); Baughn, 2015 WL 4759151, at *3.

Here, the complaint does not provide any details about the “who, what, when, where, and how” of any alleged misrepresentation or omission by GM. Plaintiff does not say whether, where, and how he encountered any specific GM communication; how he was misled; or what GM gained as a result. Plaintiff alleges no facts to establish reliance on any alleged GM omission or to support a causal connection between any alleged GM omission

1 and any claimed injury. Instead, and despite the fact that plaintiff did not actually purchase
 2 his 2012 Silverado, but rather received it used from his former employer, he makes the vague
 3 and conclusory allegation that he “relied” on GM to disclose the alleged defect to him prior 4 to “sale.” Compl. ¶ 199. Even if plaintiff could establish reliance, this bare allegation falls
 5 short of Rule 9(b)’s requirements. See In re Sears, Roebuck & Co. Tools Mktg. & Sales
 6 Practices Litig., No. MDL-1703, Nos. 05 4742, 05 C 2623, 2009 WL 937256, at *6 (N.D. Ill.
 7 Apr. 6, 2009) (“[P]laintiffs have the burden of alleging specifically which commercials they 8 saw and the content of those commercials”).³

9 C. Plaintiff Does Not Allege GM Had Knowledge Of A Defect At The Time 10 Of Sale.

11 To state a fraudulent omission claim, plaintiff must sufficiently allege that GM was 12 aware of the alleged defect at the time he purchased his vehicle. See Blangers v. United 13 States Seamless, Inc., 725 Fed. App’x 511, 514 (9th Cir. 2018) (A fraudulent concealment 14 claim requires, in part, that the seller has knowledge of the concealed defect); see also Storey 15 v. Attends Healthcare Prods., Inc., No. 15-cv-13577, 2016 WL 3125210, at *10 (E.D. Mich.
 16 June 3, 2016) (defendants “cannot be faulted for failing to reveal material ‘facts’ that did not

 18 ³ See also Williams v. Scottrade, Inc., No. 06-10677, 2006 WL 2077588, at *7 (E.D. Mich.
 19 July 24, 2006) (allegations of “generally” misrepresenting in “advertisements, marketing
 20 materials, and sales message[s]” were insufficient); Baughn, 2015 WL 4759151, at *3 21 (dismissing fraud and fraudulent concealment claims where plaintiff “fail[ed] to 22 specifically identify the content of the misrepresentations, when and where the 23 misrepresentations were made, when and where the misrepresentations were relied upon, 24 and to whom the misrepresentations were made”). To the extent plaintiff intends to rely 25 on GM advertisements and public statements about general vehicle performance, power, 26 and fuel economy (Compl. ¶¶ 108-29), those statements are non-actionable sales puffery.
See Vitt v. Apple Comput., Inc., 469 Fed. App’x 605, 607 (9th Cir. 2012) (affirming dismissal because claims that products are “reliable,” “durable,” and “high performance” are not actionable); see also Babb v. Regal Marine Indus., Inc., 179 Wash. App. 1036, at *3 (Feb. 20, 2014), review granted, remanded on other grounds, 180 Wash. 2d 1021 (2014) (“General, subjective, unverifiable claims about a product” are non-actionable puffery).

exist"). Plaintiff alleges generally that "GM has long known of the Oil Consumption Defect" (Compl. ¶ 18), but he does not identify any concealed facts; who at GM was purportedly aware of these concealed facts; when they learned them; the source of that knowledge; or any specific actions GM took to conceal these facts from him.

i. Subsequent design changes do not establish GM knowledge.

Plaintiff's attempts to allege GM knowledge are unsuccessful. First, plaintiff alleges that GM's knowledge of the alleged oil consumption defect in the Gen IV LC9 engine can be inferred from changes to the design of the next generation GM V8 engine. Id. ¶ 75. The fact that GM made changes when designing subsequent, materially different V8 engines does not establish GM knowledge of a defect in the Gen IV LC9 engine. See May v. Ford Motor Co., No. CV 09-165-GFVT, 2011 WL 13234172, at *1 (E.D. Ky. Feb. 4, 2011) (rejecting implication of defect based on evidence of subsequent design changes); Trans-Spec Truck Serv., Inc. v. Caterpillar, Inc., No. CIV.A 04-CV-11836-R, 2007 WL 776428, at *5 (D. Mass. Mar. 15, 2007) aff'd 524 F.3d 315 (1st Cir. 2008) ("Caterpillar's effort to improve on a piece of equipment [cannot] be viewed as evidence that unimproved equipment was negligently designed or manufactured."). Allegations of later design changes also do not support GM's knowledge of a defect years earlier when plaintiff's vehicle was sold (to someone other than plaintiff).

ii. Consumer complaints and service bulletins do not establish GM knowledge.

Plaintiff alleges that a statistically insignificant number of complaints submitted to NHTSA or posted on third-party websites establish GM's knowledge of the alleged oil consumption defect. Compl. ¶¶ 82-105 (describing 102 consumer complaints out of hundreds of thousands of vehicles sold). Courts routinely reject allegations of consumer complaints as insufficient to show a defendant's pre-sale knowledge. See, e.g., Wozniak v. Ford Motor Co.,

1 No. 2:17-CV-12794, 2019 WL 108845, at *3 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 4, 2019) (allegations of 2 “negative reviews on third-party forum websites and [NHTSA] complaints” insufficient to 3 show knowledge); Wilson v. Hewlett-Packard Co., 668 F.3d 1136, 1147 (9th Cir. 2012)
 4 (“[C]ustomer complaints in and of themselves [do not] adequately support an inference that a 5 manufacturer was aware of a defect. . . .”).

6 Even large numbers of complaints posted on a manufacturer’s own website have been 7 found insufficient because they “merely establish the fact that some consumers were 8 complaining.” Berenblat v. Apple, Inc., Nos. 08-4969 JF (PVT), 09-1649 JF (PVT), 2010
 9 WL 1460297, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 9, 2010) (hundreds of customer complaints posted on 10 defendant’s website “at most” established knowledge of a problem, not of a defect); see also 11 Resnick v. Hyundai Motor Am., Inc., No. CV 16-00593-BRO (PJWx), 2016 WL 9455016, at 12 *13 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 14, 2016) (“these complaints merely establish that several customers
 13 had issues with their specific vehicles, not that there was a widespread defect affecting all 14 Hyundais”). And here, plaintiff does not allege that GM monitored the websites or that it saw 15 the posts in question. See Wozniak, 2019 WL 108845, at *3 (“Plaintiffs’ general assertions of 16 Defendant’s knowledge without any alleged facts that Defendant was even aware of the 17 complaints do not rise above mere speculation”).

18 Also, to the extent these complaints were posted after plaintiff received his vehicle,
 19 or do not concern the vehicle that he owned, or do not address the specific defect at issue, 20 they cannot show knowledge of the alleged defect at the time of plaintiff’s receipt of the 21 vehicle. See In re Gen. Motors LLC Ignition Switch Litig., 257 F. Supp. 3d 372, 412
 22 (S.D.N.Y. 2017), modified on reconsideration by, Nos. 14-MD-2543 (JMF), 14-MC-2543

 2 690822, at *6-7 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 19, 2013). Here, only one complaint concerns a 2012
 3 Chevrolet Silverado—the make and model year vehicle formerly owned by plaintiff—and it
 4 is dated years after plaintiff received his vehicle. Compare Compl. ¶ 25 with ¶ 99; see also
 5 Granillo v. FCA US LLC, Civ. Action No. 16-153 (FLW)(DEA), 2016 WL 9405772, at *9
 6 (D.N.J. Aug. 29, 2016) (reviews could not support knowledge on date of purchase “because 7 they were posted after this date”).

8 Plaintiff points to GM service bulletins recommending certain diagnostic and service
 9 procedures to be used when a customer complains of oil consumption in a higher mileage
 10 vehicle. The technical service bulletins plaintiff cites alert dealerships of potential customer
 11 complaints, and they do not suggest that all Class Vehicles had issues or required repairs, or 12 suggest that the oil consumption experienced by consumers was the result of any defect.
 13 Cholakyan v. Mercedes-Benz USA, LLC, 281 F.R.D. 534, 545 (C.D. Cal. 2012); Erlandson v.
 14 Ford Motor Co., No. 08-CV-1137-BR, 2009 WL 3672898, *4 (D. Or. Oct. 30, 2009) (“TSB
 15 does not constitute an admission by Defendant that a defect exists in all Windstars because it 16 is no more than a recommended repair method for Windstars experiencing problems”).

17 D. Plaintiff Does Not Allege That GM Had A Duty To Disclose.

18 Plaintiff does not allege that GM failed to provide information that it had a duty to 19 disclose, a necessary element of his fraudulent omission claim. See Landstar Inway v.
 20 Samrow, 181 Wash. App. 109, 124 (2014).

21 Plaintiff alleges generically that GM owed him a duty to disclose because GM knew 22 that consumers “could not have reasonably been expected to know” of the alleged oil 23 consumption defect. Compl. ¶ 196. This assertion is belied by plaintiff’s many allegations of 24 public information about the alleged defect, such as the complaints to NHTSA and on third-25 party websites. Id. ¶¶ 82-105 (quoting and citing publicly-available materials). Although 26 plaintiff declares that GM “concealed . . . critical information” from him, he does not identify

1 who specifically at GM was purportedly aware of any concealed facts, the source of that 2 knowledge, or any actions GM took to conceal the facts. Id. ¶ 135. A court need not consider 3 legal conclusions of duty to be true without factual allegations supporting that conclusion.
 4 See Savchenko v. Icicle Seafoods, Inc., No. C11-2081-JCC, 2013 WL 12069045, at *2 (W.D.
 5 Wash. Mar. 12, 2013) (refusing to accept legal conclusions “couched as factual allegations”
 6 that lacked any actual facts in support).

7 The fact that plaintiff never actually purchased or leased his vehicle further precludes
 8 the finding of a duty to disclose. Under Washington law, “some type of special relationship
 9 must exist” before a duty to disclose will arise. Wetzel v. CertainTeed Corp., No. C16-10 1160JLR, 2019 WL 3976204, at * 5 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 25, 2019) (quoting Colonial Imports, 11 Inc. v. Carlton Nw. Inc., 853 P.2d 913, 917-18 (Wash. 1993)).⁴

12 E. Plaintiff Cannot Show Reliance, Causation, or Injury.

13 Plaintiff does not allege that he actually purchased, leased, or otherwise paid for his 14 2012 Silverado. Instead, he received it from a former employer as part of a separation 15 agreement. See Compl. ¶ 25. Any claim that plaintiff “relied” on GM advertisements in 16 making a purchase, or that he suffered loss in the form of overpayment are therefore 17 implausible, and his fraud claim should be dismissed.

22 ⁴ Even if plaintiff had purchased his vehicle from an independent dealership, this would 23 still not give rise to a duty to disclose. Courts in Washington refuse to impose a duty to 24 disclose on remote manufacturers for individual consumers who purchased products
 25 through independent wholesalers, distributors, or retailers. See, e.g., Wetzel, 2019 WL 3976204, at *1, 5 (where manufacturer sold product only to wholesalers and distributors, 26 any relationship between manufacturer and purchaser was “simply too tenuous” to support a duty to disclose).

1 IV. PLAINTIFF DOES NOT HAVE A VIABLE WASHINGTON
2 CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT CLAIM.

3 A. Plaintiff Does Not Adequately Plead Deceptive Conduct, Causation, or Injury.

4 Plaintiff's conclusory allegations also do not adequately plead the elements of his 5 consumer protection claim with the requisite specificity. Fidelity Mortgage, 213 F.R.D. at 6 575 (applying Rule 9(b) to a claim under the Washington Consumer Protection Act). Plaintiff
7 must specifically allege deceptive advertising, causation, and injury, but here plaintiff does 8 not allege personally encountering, relying on, or purchasing his vehicle as a result of any 9 specific GM advertisements. In fact, plaintiff never purchased or paid for his vehicle at all.
10 He received it from his former employer as part of a separation agreement. See Compl. ¶ 25.
11 Lacking facts to support a consumer protection claim, plaintiff resorts to conclusory
12 allegations that GM generally misrepresented vehicles in brochures, advertisements, other 13 marketing materials, and publications. Id. ¶¶ 110-27. Even if plaintiff could establish the 14 requisite elements of his cause of action, these bare allegations fall short of Rule 9(b)'s 15 requirements. See, e.g., Fidelity Mortgage, 213 F.R.D. at 575 (dismissing CPA claim where 16 "complaint fail[ed] to 'give particulars as to the respect in which plaintiff contend[ed] the 17 statements [were] fraudulent'; in other words, why the information at issue was false or misleading).

18 B. Plaintiff Does Not Allege That GM Had Knowledge Of A Defect At The Time Of Sale.

19 Plaintiff's Washington Consumer Protection Act claim should be dismissed for the 20 additional reason that he does not sufficiently allege GM knowledge at the time of sale (see 21 Section III.C above).

22 C. Plaintiff Does Not Have Standing To Seek Injunctive Relief.

23 Plaintiff lacks standing to obtain injunctive relief because he cannot establish a 24 likelihood of future or continuing harm. See Microsoft Corp. v. United States Dep't of

1 Justice, 233 F. Supp. 3d 887, 898 (W.D. Wash. 2017). Plaintiff does not allege that he
 2 intends to purchase a Class Vehicle and thus does not allege a risk of future harm. See Nunez
 3 v. Saks Inc., 771 F. App'x 401, 402 (9th Cir. 2019); see also Matanky v. Gen. Motors LLC, 4 370 F. Supp. 3d 772, 801 (E.D. Mich. 2019).

5 V. PLAINTIFF'S UNJUST ENRICHMENT CLAIM FAILS.

6 Plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim (Count 5) cannot proceed for three reasons. First,
 7 Washington law prohibits unjust enrichment where there is an express contract. See Miller v.
 8 Gen. Motors LLC, No. 17-cv-14032, 2018 WL 2740240, at *15 (E.D. Mich. June 7, 2018)
 9 (dismissing unjust enrichment claims under Washington law). Here, plaintiff alleges the 10 existence of a written GM warranty covering his vehicle. Compl. ¶¶ 160, 184.

11 Second, unjust enrichment claims are barred as a matter of law by adequate legal 12 remedies. See Jet Parts Eng'g Inc. v. Quest Aviation Supply, Inc., No. C15-0530 RSM, 2017
 13 WL 1093205, at *8 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 23, 2017). Here, the same alleged conduct underlies 14 plaintiff's unjust enrichment claim and his consumer protection, fraudulent omission, and 15 warranty claims. Compare Compl. ¶¶ 203-10 with ¶¶ 153-202.

16 Third, unjust enrichment is not viable because plaintiff never actually purchased or 17 leased his vehicle (having received it from his former employer), and therefore plaintiff did 18 not confer any benefit on GM. See Nat'l Sur. Corp. v. Immunexcorp., 162 Wash. App. 762, 19 778 n.11 (2011) (“a party must show a benefit conferred upon the defendant by the 20 plaintiff”); see also Allyis, Inc. v. Schroder, 197 Wash. App. 1082 (2017) (rejecting 21 plaintiff's argument that it need not directly confer benefit on defendant for unjust 22 enrichment claim to succeed).

23 VI. THE COURT SHOULD STRIKE PLAINTIFF'S NATIONWIDE 24 CLASS ALLEGATIONS

25 Plaintiff's “nationwide” class action claim under the MMWA is untenable for 26 multiple reasons. First, as explained in Section II, this case lacks the required 100 plaintiffs

1 for a class action claim under the MMWA.

2 Second, plaintiff, as an individual Washington resident, lacks standing to represent
 3 putative class members from other states. See, e.g., McKee v. Gen. Motors LLC, 376 F. Supp.
 4 3d 751, 755 (E.D. Mich. 2019) (dismissing claims under laws of twenty-six states in which 5 no named plaintiff resided or purchased the relevant product); Johnson v. Nissan N. Am., Inc., 6 272 F. Supp. 3d 1168, 1175 (N.D. Cal. 2017) (dismissing nationwide MMWA claim for 7 lack of standing).

8 Third, a nationwide MMWA claim depends on underlying state warranty law in all
 9 fifty states (see Rosipko v. FCA US, LLC, No. 15-11030, 2015 WL 8007649, at *5 (E.D.
 10 Mich. Dec. 7, 2015)), and the variations in state law would defeat the commonality,
 11 predominance, and superiority requirements of Rule 23. Variations in state law warranty 12 laws include: “(1) whether plaintiffs must demonstrate reliance, (2) whether plaintiffs must 13 provide notice of breach, (3) whether there must be privity of contract, (4) whether plaintiffs 14 may recover for unmanifested vehicle defects, (5) whether merchantability may be presumed 15 and (6) whether warranty protections extend to used vehicles.” Cole v. Gen. Motors Corp., 16 484 F.3d 717, 726 (5th Cir. 2007) (denying nationwide class certification); Rasnic v. FCA US
 17 LLC, No. 17-cv-2064-KHV, 2017 WL 6406880, at *10 (D. Kan. Dec. 15, 2017) (striking 18 class allegations because “[i]f a nationwide class seeks relief under the MMWA . . . , the 19 Court would potentially have to apply different state laws to each respective plaintiff’s claim.
 20 Differences in state laws governing each claim would create manageability concerns
 21 prohibiting class certification”). Accordingly, courts generally strike nationwide MMWA
 22 claims for this reason. See, e.g., Rasnic, 2017 WL 6406880, at *10 (striking class allegations
 23 because “[d]ifferences in state laws governing each [MMWA] claim would create 24 manageability concerns”); Miles v. Am. Honda Motor Co., No. 17 C 4423, 2017 WL 25 4742193, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 19, 2017) (striking nationwide MMWA allegations because
